

Looking Ahead to 2018: The Alpina Gstaad Announces New Wellness Program & Movement Test Spiritual Awareness & Mental Balance to De-stress and Restore Balance

GSTAAD, Switzerland, December 5, 2017 – While decking the halls for the holidays for the big reveal on December 8, The Alpina Gstaad is also thinking ahead to January and all those New Year's resolutions guests will make. A new program to boost energy and a movement test to optimize fitness – are being introduced for the winter season that runs through March 17.

Who doesn't need the new four-night, three-day Energy Healing program designed to restore vitality, boost energy and provide mental clarity, releasing tension and energy blockages. Guests who experience it can start 2018 with a fresh sense of wellbeing. Incorporating ancient massage techniques, a Kundalini Back Treatment balances the nervous system through channeling the dormant energy at the base of the spine (the Kundalini) using Chakra and sound healing. The package starts from 4750 Swiss francs (CHF) (about $4,850) for one person in a Deluxe Room Schönreid (CHF 7040, or $7187 for two persons) and also includes daily yoga classes, meditation sessions, an Amethyst Wrap, a holistic massage and Pranayama breathing exercises as well as four nights' accommodations, daily breakfast, a daily credit of CHF100 per person, per day for food and beverage in the hotel's three restaurants, free access to pools, saunas baths and relaxation areas at the Spa, parking, service charge, all taxes and VAT.

Also new this year, The Alpina Gstaad offers guests a state-of-the-art scientific screening that measures movement patterns and then identifies a person's strengths and weaknesses. With its groundbreaking technology and 95 percent accuracy, the Alpina Movement Efficiency Analysis by Fusionetics can show how to optimize fitness and movement to increase performance. It also illustrates how to avoid injuries and physical problems. After taking the 45-minute test (CHF 105, or about US$106), a personalized workout plan can be devised for each guest who can opt for sessions with a private trainer (60-minutes for CHF 150, or about US$152).

The Alpina Gstaad Welcomes Swiss Skincare Products

New this season at the hotel's Six Senses Spa are products and treatments from the Swiss luxury skincare company, Dr. Burgener. Founded almost 60 years ago by Dr. Marc Burgener, a noted plastic surgeon and skin specialist, the company has been led since 1995 by his daughter-in-law, Dr. Pauline Burgener. An advocate for health, fitness, good nutrition and the virtues of natural ingredients, Dr. Burgener believes "beauty comes from within." Combining cutting-edge Swiss technologies with natural active ingredients such as Green Caviar, gold, pure collagen, fruit acids and Royal Jelly, Dr. Burgener created a new luxury skincare concept and treatment line. The company's "small batch production" allows for customization of its skincare products assuring freshness and purity.

Facials with Dr. Burgener products offered at The Alpina Gstaad include the Swiss Anti-Ageing Jewel, Luxury Green Caviar Advance Facial or the Men's Skin Fitness Facial. VitaSkin ultrasound which uses acoustic waves of different frequencies to improve the skin condition and slow down the aging process can be added to these facials. For a truly indulgent body treatment, guests can opt for the Chardonnay Antioxidant Ritual, which uses chardonnay grape seed extracts for their powerful anti-aging properties. A body scrub and wrap are followed by a massage using champagne that leaves skin glowing and rejuvenated.

For guests who want to think ahead to summer, the hotel continues to feature Stand-up Paddleboarding Yoga and Fitness throughout the winter. Guests work their core, strengthen their legs and calm the mind with floating meditation. The 60-minute sessions (CHF 150 or $152) can be booked with the yoga instructor or personal trainer and can be practiced in the indoor pool, or for those more rugged guests, the outdoor one.
